

A WORD ABOUT E & P

To meet the ever-growing need of employers for qualified executive and professional employees, and to provide an improved service to those seeking employment in managerial, technical and professional occupations, NES has streamlined its executive and professional service.

Thirty-seven "key" offices across the country have been staffed with specialists who devote their full time to finding highly-qualified executive and professional workers for the vacancies listed by employers. These same specialists give full-time attention to job-seekers with these qualifications. Whether you are an employer or an applicant, and no matter where you are located, this specialized service is available to you.

Simply call on your local National Employment Office and your E & P problems will be given prompt and courteous attention.

... and a word about TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Canada's labour market has become national as well as local. NES is the only employment service with the resources to provide adequate national, as well as local, service to employers and job-seekers.

In metropolitan areas, NES offices are linked by teletype. Across the country, NES offices are linked by telex. NES is the only employment service with a telecommunications network designed specifically to provide the prompt, efficient service that today's fast-changing world of business and industry demands.
